Leader Expectations for the Indiana 4-H Program

This four-page guide is meant to be an educational tool useful to those interested in personal growth as a 4-H volunteer.

Introduction
Volunteer 4-H leaders are very important members of the Purdue Extension Service. Volunteers are key people needed to make a strong local 4-H program. They are vital in extending the 4-H program to Indiana youth. 4-H leaders are talented, enthusiastic, and involved people. It is important for the 4-H volunteer to embrace positive youth development techniques and to realize that they are representing Purdue University Cooperative Extension Service. The Cooperative Extension Service is the nonformal education outreach unit of Purdue University and the United States Department of Agriculture.

What Are Leader Expectations?
These leader expectations are behaviors that an organizational 4-H leader is expected to demonstrate or perform. Within the 4-H club program, a 4-H leader is expected to do and be many things. The purpose of this checklist is to outline and organize expectations of 4-H leaders into three categories: County Extension office and adult volunteer cooperation; club meetings; and characteristics. Using this list, a 4-H volunteer can visualize and understand what is expected of a 4-H leader.

How Can This Guide Be Used?
The purpose of this guide is to provide a simple tool to help volunteers document their current behavior as 4-H leaders (pages 2 and 3) and design a plan for focused personal growth within the 4-H program (page 4). Volunteers need and desire opportunities to check their behavior against what is expected. This four-page publication can be used over a three-year period to record a volunteer’s current performance and the next year’s personal goals. The use of this guide and your personal analysis can be done independently, in a group, or privately with the 4-H Extension educator.
4-H Organizational Club and Project Leader Expectations

An Opportunity to Direct Your Personal Growth

Directions:

To the right of the list of expectations are five columns. Columns 1 and 2 are for you to check whether or not you were aware that this behavior is expected of you. Columns 3, 4, and 5 can be used to indicate three different years, the current year and the next two, for example. Read each expectation and use the following code to indicate your level of performance for each expectation.

(*) Outstanding     (+) OK    (-) Needs improvement

You may want to share your personal analysis with your 4-H Extension educator.
